CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks, and extend words of appreciation, confidence and esteem to our many friends who rendered such noble and valuable assistance to our family during the last illness of our beloved daughter, Gertrude. Their kindness shall never be forgotten and the lasting obligations under which we are placed can never be repaid. In this sad hour of bereavement, we assure them that they can with full confidence rely upon our gratitude.

Respectfully,
John and Louisa Vandine.

AMUSEMENTS.

BLIND BOONE COMPANY. The musical wonder is meeting with audiences that test the capacity of any audience room. At St. Joseph, Me., and at Guthrie many could not gain admission for lack of room. His rendition of "The Cyclone" is so realistic as to astonish all. The duet and quartette part of the enter-tainment is fine. The Garfield hall, though very large, will be tested to its utmos next Friday night.

SCHUBERT QUARTETTE

The Schubert quartette, and their assistants, who will be at St. John's stone church on Saturday evening next, promises one of the most delightful and interesting concerts of the sesson. Read what the press says of their appearance elsewhere:

"The Schubert male quartette of Chicago appeared at the Y. M. C. A. hall last last night in one of the most interesting entertainments that has been provided for the course thi season. The quartette is widely known throughout the east and west and west and these established no mean reputation."—[Providence News.]

"The Schubert is one of the very best quartettes in this country. The voices are not only rich and mellow, individually, but blend together perfectly."—[Keene, N. H., Evening Sentinel]

"Miss MacCorkle's reading of Proctor's pathetic composition, "The Message," was certainly artistic. Her voice, sweet and melodious, she neatly adapts to her selections; and the voice of Pat is as easily recognized as that of little Willie telling about me family affairs,"—Knoxville, Daily Journal.

"Miss Clark handled her instrument with artistic skill. Her bowing is very superior, quite natural and artiess, and really exquisitely grateful. Her technique is finished in every way."—Syracuse Standard.
